

The branch of the family to which Alexander Thompson Moorhead belonged settled in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, and it was in the town of Indiana that most of his children were born and in which they all grew up.

Three of those children who are left felt that it would be of interest to continue the record of his family through the next fifty years.

The record is as complete as it was possible to make it from the information that was given them. If there are omissions, they are unintentional, if errors have been made, tolerance is begged and those concerned perhaps in correcting those errors can carry the record still farther.
