

we made figures from one to ten on our slates, but why bring this up?

The primary teacher having herded us properly in the big room each morning would sit decorously upon the raised platform where the master's desk and chair had the place of honor.

The back seats on the girls' side of the room were occupied by; Lizzie Chapman, Mildred McBride, Emma Greene, Nettie Darby, Celia Peck, Dora Harrison, Josie Harrison, Mame Darby, Lelia Lewis, Lucy Greene, Maggie Jackson, Anna Haines, Cora Biddle, Stella McBride and Eva Hunter. On the boys' side were: Harry Gilbert, Bert Sheeley, Sam Darby, Geo. Chapman, Melvin Lewis, Nathan Moulthrop, John Darby, Howard Gilbert, Jim Haines, Frank Jackson, Dick Biddle, Geo. Brass, Urban Moulthrop, Burt Greene, Henry Rheinbolt, Sam Galough and John McEwen.

The grade just older than our gang that goose stepped through the little hall just ahead of us were: Catherine Shamonski, Rose Darby, Jessie Moulthrop, Grace Greene, Maggie Anderson, Hattie Brass, Emma Biddle, Paul Galough, Dan and Charley Gilbert, Charlie Jackson, Charlie Peck, Geo. and Rufus Boyles, Cowden Brass, Geo. and Fulmer Jenkins, Asa Bailey, Frank Max, Al and Frank Strickland and Johnny Komoki. We recall those of the younger fry who in '85 and '86 followed us, there were: Ed and Lawrence Lucas, Maud Harrison, Maggie Spiegel, Ida and Lewis Rinker, Mina Anderson, Anna Jenkins, Josie and Frankie Lewis, Lydia Craven, Bessie Peck, Anna Gilbert, Essie McEwen, Florence Darby, Del and Lydia Strickland. These and other names and faces that melt into the mist of years inspire the thought that much water passed under the big bridge from 1884 to 1934, some of it having washed from memory the names and faces we would gladly call back, but alas! the tide of time like the "Old Sock" goes on forever and though fast our fancy may run hither and yon, we can gather up all the sunbeams that have illumined life's pathway or bind in a single sheaf all of our boyhood friendships.

Not much can be said of the teachers, good and not so good, who gave our young ideas little to shoot at; many are dead and some of them, if fate has rewarded them according to our youthful wishes, are in a climate more torrid than the tropics, nevertheless, among them there is one uncrowned king whose name we would place upon the Roll of Honor, however, we recal that if living, he would have little cause to remember us kindly. The tribute we would pay to the successful life work of J. Abner Miller, though we know nothing of its nature, is that for seven months of one eventful year after his graduation from Dickinson College, he nearly solved the problem—"How to Make Something Out of Nothing."

SCHOOL ROLL 1884

GIRLS

Cora Biddle, Elizabeth Chapman, Mame Darby, Mittie Darby, Nettie Draby, Clarisa Darby, Emma Greene, Lucy Greene, Fannie Van Steinberg, May VanSteinberg, Dora Harrison, Josie Harrison, Lulu Harrison, Annie Haynes, Eva Hunter, Maggie Jackson, Lelia Lewis, Maggie Lewis, Cora McBride, Mildred McBride, Stella McBride, Nellie Moulthrop, Ercelia Peck, Jennie Sheeley, Hannah Wager.

BOYS

Dick Biddle, Wm. Van Steinburg, George Brass, George Chapman, John Darby, Sam. Darby, Sam. Galough, Harry Gilbert, Howard Gilbert, Burt Greene, Jim Haynes, Frank Jackson, Melvin Lewis, Nate Moulthrop, Urban Moulthrop, Henry Rheinbolt, Bert Sheeley, Ezra Wager, John McEwen.

The grade just older who goose stepped through the little hall just ahead of us were:—

GIRLS

Maggie Anderson, Emma Biddle, Hattie Brass, Rose Darby, Grace Greene, Jessie Moulthrop, Catherine Shamonski.

BOYS

Asa Bailey, George Boyles, Rufus Boyles, Cowden Brass, Charles Gilbert, Dan Gilbert, Paul Galough,