

An unidentified group of tannery workers, sitting and standing, at a pile of bark ready for the soaking vats.

The splash dam somewhere upstream from the village. Logs were impounded and released to float downstream when high water filled the Loyalsock.